

#GIVINGTUESDAY

Lovells Island Oil House

I am very excited to be able to let you know today, that the Friends of the Boston Harbor Island's have raised over $29,965 as of the 21st! A portion of this is via the match with the Massachusetts Department of Conservation Several grants have been applied for and while their awards may be a "long-shot" I am hopeful. MassDCR has hired an expert to evaluate the structure and we hope to hear more in the coming weeks.

You'll find a story below from our wonderful member Blossom Hoag, her family has fond memories of visiting Lovells and the Oil House.

In addition to these wonderful memories, we've received wonderful letters of support from:

- Lighthouse Expert Jeremy D'Entremont,
- MWRA Executive Director Fred Laskey,
- US National Parks Service General Superintendent (NP of Boston) Michael Creasey as well as
- Boston Harbor NOW's CEO Kathy Abbot.

These wonderful letters of support can be found on our web page.

We're not alone in this effort - and our donations show that our members and Friends are stepping up to assist. See the list of donors below. A new video about the Oil House can be found here.

40th Anniversary!

- While the Lovells Island Oil House is a major focus, our 40th Anniversary will also bring our Seafarer's Holiday on Thompson's Island. Tickets are available on our web page FBHI.org or at the boat on January 1st. The boat leaves promptly at noon from Rowes Wharf in Boston. Bundle up & come on out!

- Plans are also forming for a Speakers Series at the Old South Meeting House later in 2019. Other special activities will follow in the coming months.

Please consider making a contribution of $75, $100 or more to the Oil House effort. Donors will receive a membership to the FBHI, plus a gift for participating. See the details on our web page.

Please visit our special web page for this effort at: <http://fbhi.org/lovells-island-oil-house-fundraiser.html>. Help us by forwarding this email to family, friends, history buffs and lighthouse lovers! Credit Card donations can be processed on our web page; checks can be sent to FBHI 30 Shipyard Drive #202, Hingham, MA 02043.

Learn more about the oil house and see photos, historic documents, and more from our special web site. Have you been to the Oil House on Lovells? Send photos, writings, your thoughts, paintings or drawings to be included on our page.

Together, we will save a link to Boston's maritime history.

Yours,

Walter Hope, Chairman

A Hoag
Family Memory

A note about the Boston Harbor Islands:

I started visiting the Boston Harbor Islands
in the 1970s when I first moved to Boston.

I was fortunate enough to work for an architect and the National Architectural Society held its annual meeting in Boston which included a Clam Bake and visit to George's Island-long before the National Parks got involved. Edward Rowe Snow was on hand to give tours and tell some of his remarkable stories. From that moment I fell in love with the Islands and have been so very pleased over the years that they have been so protected by Boston, the state AND the Federal government to keep commercialism at bay. They were a wild place for my children and many children in the metro Boston area to get away from the city, hear the birds, the lapping of the waters, the fog horns, appreciate nature and learn so much of our history.

With that, in the 1980s I got involved with Suzanne Gall and then the Friends of the Boston Harbor Islands, which she founded. The organization has done much over the years to work with the agencies and help protect some of our marine heritage. They fought to keep a presence at the Boston Harbor Lighthouse after all other lighthouses in the country had been automated. They helped protect quirky Nix's Mate, an aid to navigation, and most recently, they are engaged in the rehabilitation of the oil house on Lovell's Island.

On one of our family's many visits to Lovells we found this dear relic and my son, Ian, was photographed in the doorway. Any help that you can direct to preserving this piece of history would be greatly appreciated-and be sure to visit the next time you visit Lovell's Island.
